

Gear List, available for loan from Lyle:

Tents/Tarps:

- Big Agness Fly Creek UL one man tent, 11lb 11oz – no Treking poles required
- Gossemer Gear “The One” one man tent, 17 oz. - requires two Treking poles
- Six Moon Designs “Wild Oasis” one man shaped tarp, 14 oz. - requires one Treking pole

Pack:

- Large, old Camp Trails internal frame pack, 4 lbs or so – more pack than you need for this trip, but fully usable
- ULA “P2”, about 28oz. Great pack, what I will be using on the JMT prior to the Colorado hike (to accommodate the larger bear canister) - I will use the much smaller ULA Ohm 2 for the Colorado hike

Sleeping Pad:

- Big Agness “Insulated Air Core”, VERY comfortable air mattress, 24 oz good down to 15 degrees.
- A couple Ridge Rest or Blue Foam pads

Stove:

- Coleman F1 Exponent Ultralight canister stove, 2.7 oz – need to add a fuel canister
- Assorted light weight cooking pots if you need one, generally one person size.

Sleeping Bag:

I have several, but will be using the ideal weight one, which I consider to be a 20 degree.

- I do have a much lighter 32 degree down bag, or possibly a 35 degree synthetic (but light) bag. Couldn't guarantee you'd be toasty in these in Sept., but you should survive. :-)
- Also an old Kelty down bag, 15 degree, in the 3 lb range. A bit bulky, but you will sleep toasty!

Treking Poles:

- One set of REI (Komperdell) Poles – fully functional.

I will also pack along a few water bladders, head lamps, and any other odds and ends I can think that folks might need.
